Public debates on Khudoni hydroelectric power plant to be held in Tbilisi

The Georgian Public Defender’s office and the National Library of the Georgian Parliament will begin public debates. The first debate on “Khudoni hydroelectric power plant: projects of national importance and their impact on human rights” will be held on February 28 at 17:00.

Several non-governmental organizations and villagers of Khaishi that will be flooded in case of construction are against the construction of the hydroelectric power plant. The meeting will be organized with the support of the EU project ‘Support to the Georgian Public Defender’s Office’.

Translated by NH
Edited by CN

Follow us on Twitter @TRENDNewsAgency

Tags: Georgia, Khudoni hydroelectric power plant